A MODEL QUARTERMASTER'S DEPARTMENT

THROUGH the courtesy of Captain Frank Deitrick, Company "A," Ninth Regiment Infantry, we are enabled to present an illustration and description of what we consider one of the finest Company Quartermaster Departments in the State. The inspecting officer at a glance can note every article of equipment; even the woolen blanket and poncho which are at the bottom of the compartment are numbered in accordance with the rifle number.

Overcoats, blouses, trousers, caps and waist belts are issued to members when they enlist and their receipt taken for the same. This portion of the equipment remains in the member's possession and is kept at their respective homes. Extra overcoats, blouses, trousers and caps are suspended in moth proof chests in property room.

Keys to property room are in possession of Captain, Quartermaster Sergeant and Armorer only. Doors and lockers on compartments are unnecessary, members having no occasion to use any of the property therein except when ordered "out," in which event equipment is issued according to company number, receipted for by member receiving the same and returned when its use is no longer necessary.

Size of room, 24 x 27 feet. Cost complete, including floor and ceiling of North Carolina pine and compartments of spruce and poplar, $175. Number of compartments, 60. Cost, $1.50 each. Size, 3 feet 4 inches high, 1 foot 8 inches deep and 1 foot 3 inches wide. These compartments are built in sections, and placed on "horses" three feet high, the space between the floor and compartments being used for storage of mess tent, field range, ammunition, chests, etc. The arrangement of property in compartments is shown in accompanying sketch.

Captain Deitrick is a thorough tactician and disciplinarian. He is building up a company of young men who will be hard to beat in another year's time.

Wagner's Security and Information on Rear Guard

Through the courtesy of Captain Charles F. Hess, Company "K", First Infantry, and for the benefit of the service, we desire to reprint his abridgment of Wagner's security and information on rear guard.

Formation and Composition of the Rear Guard.

The formation of the rear guard is that of an advance guard reversed. Nearest the main body is the reserve, after which follow the support and the rear party, the extreme rear being composed of a point. The distances between the various bodies composing the rear guard are the same as those between the corresponding bodies of the advance guard. Flankers are thrown out as in the case of an advance guard, but they are more numerous, and the line joining them is a more pronounced curve, for the reason that flank attacks are more to be feared than in the case of an advance guard, and the flanks must, therefore, be more carefully covered.

Duty of a Rear Guard.

The duty of the rear guard cannot begin until the battle has ended. On the field itself the withdrawal is covered by the artillery and cavalry, and it is only when the first halt is effected that the rear guard can be organized and a regular retreat begun.

The rear guard must profit to the utmost by the defensive features of the ground, and at every opportunity take up a strong defensive position.

Distance from the Main Body.

As the main body seeks to withdraw from the enemy as rapidly as possible, while the rear guard endeavors to delay him and watch his movements, it is clear that the distance between the two bodies cannot be definitely prescribed. In general terms it may be said to be usual about the same as that of the advance guard from the main body on advance. In marching at night, the rear guard draws near the column.

Halts.

When the rear guard halts, it chooses a good defensive position, and establishes its outposts towards the enemy. It is desirable that the position should not only be strong, but that it should command an extended view. On halting for the night, the rear guard should, when practicable, be relieved by other troops.

Rear Guard Drill.

Upon the receipt of the order to form a company as a rear guard, its captain halts it, and if it be not already in that formation, forms it in column of fours facing the enemy. The main body having gained the proper distance, the captain commands: 1. Form rear guard; 2. Second platoon fours left about; 3. March; and the second platoon, under command of the captain, at once moves to the rear and follows the main body. At the command: 1. First and rear fours; 2. Right and left oblique; 3. March; the designated fours move out as flankers in the manner prescribed for the advance guard, the front rank to the right, and the rear rank to the left.

When the reserve has gained its proper distance, the first lieutenant commands: 1. Second section; 2. Fours left about; 3. March. The section follows the reserve as a support, maintaining the proper distance. Flankers are sent out from the rear four as in the advance guard.

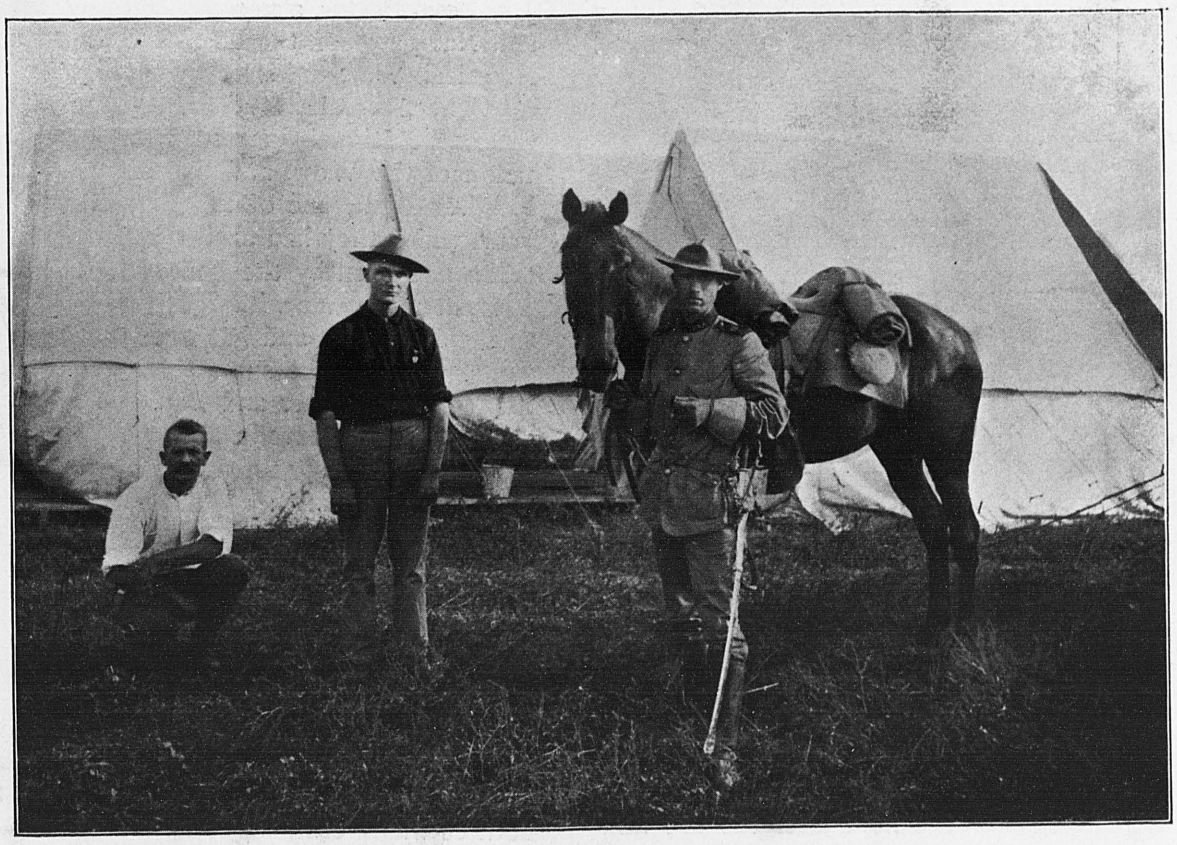
CAPTAIN THOMAS ALLEN GLENN

Captain Thomas Allen Glenn was born in Philadelphia, January 8, 1864, and is a descendant of Dr. John Glenn, brother of James Glenn, Royal Governor of South Carolina. His family have been prominent in the early history of this country; among them may be mentioned General Forbes, Commander-in-Chief of the British forces in the Second Expedition against Fort Duquesne; Samuel Richardson, first President Judge of Court of Common Pleas, Philadelphia; Robert Wharton, Captain First Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry; Captain Robert Allen, of the Ninth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, mentioned for gallant and meritorious conduct at the battle of Lundy's Lane in the War of 1812, formerly of the English Army. His great-grandfather, James Glenn, of the American Artillery Company, was one of the defenders of Baltimore, and his great-great-grandfather was with Wayne at Stony Point. He was educated at the Episcopal Academy, Philadelphia, and afterwards studied engineering and conveyancing, and for the last ten years has devoted his attention to literature, being the author of several works on Colonial history and genealogy. In 1896 he organized the Second Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, and was the first commander of the troop as an independent company. The original Second Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, was the outgrowth of the old Philadelphia Light Horse, organized during and just subsequent to the Revolutionary War. At the close of the war there were two troops—the First and Second, to which were subsequently added two additional troops, the whole forming a regiment under the command of Col. Robert Wharton, Mayor of Philadelphia, formerly Captain of both the First and Second Troops. The Second Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, was formerly commanded by such men as Bingham, Thomas Cadwalader, Abraham Singer, and William Rawle, Jr.—the latter during the War of 1812. The Troop continued as an organization down to a few years prior to the Civil War. Captain Glenn resigned in the late fall of 1897, and was elected an honorary member, and Captain Edwards, U. S. A., instructor at Girard College, was induced to take command of the Troop. Upon the breaking out of the Spanish-American War Captain Glenn enlisted as a private in the Troop, and with it was mustered into the National Guard of Pennsylvania, just after the first call by the President for volunteers. He was shortly afterwards appointed Volunteer Aid-de-Camp to General J. P. S. Gobin, commanding the Third Brigade, First Division, Second Army Corps, U. S. V., and served at Falls Church, Dun Loring, Va., and Camp Meade, Pa. He succumbed to fever in October, and did not recover until the following January. He rejoined his Troop in February, 1901, and was appointed Sergeant, but owing to literary work calling him abroad for an extended period, was honorably discharged the following summer. During the riots last fall at Shenandoah, he was acting Aid-de-Camp to General Gobin, Third Brigade, N. G. P. While the present condition of the Second Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, is due to the untiring efforts of Captain Frank E. Schermerhorn, upon the foundation so well laid by his predecessors, Captain Richard Tilghman and Captain Edwards, yet to Captain Glenn should be accorded the credit of originating the re-organization of the old Second Troop, and for nearly two years keeping together an organization in the face of the most severe and adverse criticism and discouraging outlook. Captain Glenn says that about the only encouragement he received in his first attempt to form a new troop in Philadelphia was from Adjutant General Stewart, whose first communication regarding the Second Troop is carefully treasured.



CAPTAIN THOMAS ALLEN GLENN, UNITED STATES VOLUNTEERS

EXTINCTION OF FIRE ABOARD SHIP.

Consul Liefeld, of Freiburg, March 13, 1901, sends the following article on extinction of fire on shipboard, taken from the Fire Call, a European journal devoted to the fire service:

Some experiments have been made at Bremen in connection with a new mode of extinguishing fires on board ship, invented by a Berlin chemist by the name of Gronwald. The objects aimed at and said to have been attained by the new system are: First, to give timely notice, by means of a special apparatus, of any fire which may break out in the hold of a ship; and, second, to promptly extinguish the same by pumping carbonic acid into the hold.

LIEUT. GEORGE F. BUSS,
Battalion Adjutant, 9th Infantry, Pittston.

Two piles of wood, in all about 4 cubic meters square, were built up in the forehold of a lighter. The large logs were mixed with smaller blocks of wood and a quantity of wood shavings soaked in petroleum. On the top of the piles of wood was spread about a fourth of a ton of coal, and in the hold was also placed an iron basket filled with coke heated to a perfect glow. The two piles of wood were set alight simultaneously at seven minutes past four in the afternoon. The fire developed quickly with the hatches open, and at twenty-one minutes past four the hatches were closed. Carbonic-acid gas was then pumped into the hold for twenty-one minutes, and ten minutes later the hatches were opened. The fire was found to be completely extinguished. The fire alarm worked perfectly, and the thermometer on deck showed the rise and fall of the temperature in the hold correctly. Later, another experiment was made under exactly the same conditions, except that steam instead of carbonic-acid gas was pumped into the hold after the fire had become well developed. On this occasion, the piles were lighted at ten minutes past nine in the morning, and the hatches were closed fifteen minutes later. Steam of 8 atmospheres, falling rapidly to 1.5 atmospheres, was then discharged into the hold through a hose pipe attached alternately to a couple of steam fire engines. This went on for thirty minutes, and the hatches were then taken off. The fire in the piles of wood was apparently extinguished, but there was yet so much life left in it that one of the piles blazed up again in seven minutes and the other in nine minutes. The fire in the basket of coke was quite out, but a few glimmering sparks remained among the ashes of the wood which had been used for lighting the coke.

Without pronouncing any opinion one way or the other respecting Herr Gronwald's system, suffice it to say that the only new feature in it appears to consist in his employment of carbonic-acid gas. What he claims is that when a fire breaks out in a ship's hold, if his system is followed the fire will be automatically announced on deck; it will be kept under observation from the deck and extinguished by operations carried out on deck. His system consists in fitting pipes in every compartment of the vessel communicating with the deck, acting as safety valves, through which smoke and heated air may ascend to the deck in case of fire and give the alarm; further, thermometers and alarms may be lowered down these tubes, thus making it possible to watch the progress of a fire in the hold from the deck without either removing the hatches or entering the hold, and, lastly (which is the principal feature of the system), down these pipes is pumped the carbonic-acid gas which will extinguish the fire. The gas can be forced among the cargo at any required pressure, and it will permeate everything, even tightly stowed cotton bales.

NAVAL RESERVES OF NEW JERSEY

The Second Battalion of the Naval Reserve, State of New Jersey, is now about completing the sixth year of its existence, having been organized May 23, 1895, under the command of Commander Chas. B. Dahlgren, a veteran of the Civil War.

Commander Dahlgren commanded the Battalion about three years, and was succeeded by Commander Harry R. Cohen, a graduate of Annapolis, who was unremitting in his efforts to bring the organization to a high plane of efficiency in all its branches. Commander Cohen was Executive Officer on the U. S. Monitor "Montauk" during the Spanish-American war.

Owing to pressure of business he was compelled to sever his connection with the Battalion, and was succeeded by Commander Jas. Boyd Potter, also a graduate of Annapolis, and was Lieutenant and Navigator on the U. S. Monitor Montauk during the Spanish-American War, and is now the commanding officer of the Battalion.

The Second Battalion, which is now attached to the Second Brigade, National Guard of New Jersey, was first known as the Battalion of the West, and had for its first practice ship the U. S. Monitor Ajax, one of the fleet of monitors built during the Civil War, which they had until the Spanish-American War, when it was taken and used by the United States Government.

After the war with Spain, the U. S. S. Huntress was assigned to the Battalion, and has been used by the Battalion about two years. During the summer months, weekly trips are taken down the Delaware River and Bay.

These trips have been very instructive to both officers and men, enabling everybody to become familiar with the ship channels, range lights and buoys.

On these trips, the rules and regulations of the United States Navy have been strictly adhered to, thus making officers and men capable of going into the regular service, and understanding their positions at once, they being taught all their duties on board ship, and instructed in how to steer, rope work, boat work, compass, lead and log line, and especially signals in all its branches.

The Battalion outside of its weekly work on the U. S. S. Huntress, has taken two summer cruises on the U. S. S. Prairie, one to Gardiner's Bay, L. I., and one to Casco Bay, Maine, on both of which cruises good records were made by all hands.

The Battalion is divided into three Divisions, who drill separately once every week, and a full Battalion drill is held once every

The Battalion was extensively employed during the Spanish-American War, the "Resolute," which was at the battles of Manzanillo and Santiago, Cuba, and the "Montauk," stationed at Portland, Maine, being manned almost entirely by officers and men from this Battalion, some of the men also serving on the St. Paul, and in the Sixth Cavalry, which also took part in the fighting around Santiago, Cuba.

To the Pan-American by the Philadelphia and Reading

A copy of a very handsome booklet, giving illustrations and descriptive information in reference to the Great Pan-American Exposition to be held at Buffalo, May 1st to November 1st, will be sent free to any address on receipt of a two cent stamp, by Edson J. Weeks, General Passenger Agent, Reading Terminal, Philadelphia. Information will also be enclosed giving time of trains and rates for excursion tickets during the month of May from Philadelphia. The Philadelphia and Reading is also the popular route to Atlantic City, Ocean City and Cape May, as well as to New York and to Reading, Harrisburg, Williamsport and Gettysburg.

SIXTEENTH REGIMENT NOTES.

I. The Spring Inspections should now engage the attention of every man in the Regiment. They give the only official rating of the companies published by the Adjutant General, and the company rating, as has been announced, will be considered in the awards in the competitive drills.

II. Every company is expected to drill at least twice a week from April 10th until inspections, the dates of which are announced in the enclosed order. Begin early; make things snap; be brisk, alert, assured.

Divide into squads. See that non-coms. perfect the squads man by man in the "School of the Soldier" and the duties and "General Orders" of Sentinels.

Banish all listlessness, dawdling and slovenliness.

Permit no talking in ranks. When at "attention" insist upon silence and immobility. One evening a week at "attention," carefully correcting, man by man, all faults of position, stiffness or unsteadiness, to teach what absolute immobility is, will quickly give discipline and tone to your company.

Abolish the reprehensible practice of slapping down the foot at the "march," and bringing the pieces to the "order" with a thump. Practice until this can be done silently. Insist that officers and men hold their heads up.

In firing, insist that left elbow rest against body, little finger against guard.

A perfect turn can be made if each man after making the half face will keep the head of the man ahead of him covering the head of the second man ahead.

Insist that non-coms. and sentinels, being interrogated shall come to "port" and answer in prompt soldierly accents.

Insist that officers learn how to draw and return swords and take prescribed positions in "dressing" or commanding a company. Correctness, snappiness, assuredness of officers quickly give the cue to the men.

In the limited areas of drill rooms, be extremely careful of formations of advance and rear guards and outposts. Use the blackboard to illustrate the positions of the various elements of the guard at any given moment, and then drill at it until every member knows where he belongs and can get there at command quickly and silently, assuming a soldierly attitude, knowing what he is there for and able to tell it to an Inspecting Officer.

At Inspection, remember the powerful impression that immobility, silence, precision, brief, sharp commands, instant execution, trim carriage of sentinels, prompt soldierly responses to interrogation by Inspector, will give of your company. If errors are made, call no attention to them.

During inspection, men out of ranks will come to "attention" and remain so while the Inspector or any other commissioned officer is near by. Disengaged men, talking or walking about, or skating over the floor make a very bad impression.

At drill, correct every mistake on the instant, but be just as earnest and particular as though you are on Inspection.

At 8 o'clock or 8.10 dismiss your company. Give the boys the rest of the evening. Put in the rest of the time on your non-coms.

Don't carry over 55 men on your rolls; let others go on a waiting list. Make requisitions now for all needed stuff.

Address letters to Adjutant General and send through military channels, explicitly setting forth the facts relied on to warrant exoneration of lost or worn-out property, upon Property Returns, and in proper cases the exoneration will be made. This obviates necessity for boards of survey.

III. Books and papers must be put in perfect order. Captain Millard Scheide will at once devise a convenient method of keeping books and papers and prepare, and transmit to the Battalion Adjutants a chart of instructions with additional instructions in customary forms of military correspondence. The Battalion Adjutants, making themselves thoroughly conversant therewith, will visit each company of their respective battalions at least one week prior to the Inspections and inform Captains and carefully instruct company clerks in the adopted forms. These forms will thereafter be strictly observed throughout the regiment.

IV. The Battalion Adjutants will also visit each company of their respective battalions at least one week prior to the Inspections, giving company, battalion and regimental commands at least one week's notice of their intended visit, and carefully and thoroughly examine all non-commissioned officers of the respective companies. The examination sheet heretofore issued will be the basis of the examination. They will report the result of these examinations, with their recommendations, to the respective Company Commanders, who will immediately forward the same to these headquarters, with such endorsement as they deem proper.

These examinations are very important. The non-coms. furnish the commissioned officers. In this regiment I believe without exception the commissioned officers have served as non-commissioned officers. The high standing of the regiment depends on the intelligence of its non-coms.

THE Armory question in Pittsburgh for the Fourteenth and Eighteenth Regiments is again being agitated, but little headway seems to be made.

THE character of "Our State Army and Navy" Journal and the value of its advertising is made apparent by an examination of its advertising columns. We continue to have among our patrons nearly every one of those who advertised in the first issue, November, 1897. We respectfully solicit correspondence in this connection.

IT is expected that each Company will receive $75 this season for rifle practice commutation and 5,000 rounds of ammunition. Qualifying will be done at the silhouette target excepting at the State matches; these will be shot on the bull's eye elliptical target.

Several improvements will be made at the State range this year.

THE May number of the Journal will be devoted to the dedication ceremonies of the new Armory of the Thirteenth Regiment, at Scranton, Pa., Colonel Louis A. Watres, commanding. It will contain beautifully illustrated views of the exterior and interior of the new Armory and the old structure; also engravings of the Armory committee, former Colonels of the Regiment and the active field, line and staff.

THE election of Lieutenant Colonel William G. Price, Jr., to the command of the Third Infantry, is in line with the pace set by Colonel Ralston. Colonel Price is a very able tactician and as an executive officer will have few equals in the State service.

The project for the permanent improvement of the Third Regiment Armory will now take new life, and it is safe to say that within the next fifteen months the new companies will be properly quartered and the necessary funds raised.

THE reception of Company "I" of the Thirteenth Infantry, located at Easton, on Monday evening April 8th, was a very brilliant affair. The entire auditorium of the Abel Opera House was floored over at an expense of several hundred dollars. The decorations were fine and the general arrangement could scarcely be surpassed.

The assemblage was composed of the first families of the town and the gowns of the ladies were superb. It would be difficult to mention any particular one as the taste displayed was fully in keeping with the event.

The feature of the reception was the grand march, led by Colonel Louis A. Watres and Mrs. Captain Robert T. Horn. Captain Fred R. Drake, aide-de-camp on General Gobin's staff, Captain Atherton of the Thirteenth and many visiting officers and civil officials followed with their ladies.

The musical part of the program was very excellent and was under the direction of Mr. Arthur Smith, a brother of Lieutenant Clarence Smith. The orchestra comprised thirty soloists, several of whom were engaged in New York City for the occasion.

The members of Company "I" did themselves proud and we hope with a little more experience that the next undertaking of a similar charcter will prove a greater success financially.

COLONEL C. BOW DOUGHERTY, Ninth Infantry, through whose efforts the Pennsylvania Commandery of the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish-American War was organized at the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia, April 19th, is again active in arranging a plan to organize an association of the National Guard of Pennsylvania which is to comprise the field, line and staff officers, the object being to assemble at least once a year in convention to discuss and formulate matters necessary for the best interests of the State service and to present the many wants of the Guard to the Legislature.

New York State has such an organization which was organized in February of 1878, and during that time has become a "political power" in the State. The primary method of this organization was to present to each member of the Legislature the fact that the National Guard of the State consisted, for instance, of 10,000 men, and presuming that each member of that organization had but one friend whom he could control, that 20,000 voters thus banded had a significant importance at future elections. The result was that to-day, through the efforts of this association, anything can be had that is necessary for the welfare of the Guard, even $1,000,000 armories.

We wish Colonel Dougherty and his constituents in this undertaking all the success possible, and "Our State Army and Navy" Journal hopes to have the pleasure of printing the first proceedings of the convention.

AN important occasion, like the anniversary of the First Regiment, which is celebrated on the 19th of each April, with great pomp and splendor, should be reported by a Press Committee of the Regiment. Colonel Henry T. Dechert, of the Second Infantry, has established this system, and, as a rule, succeeds in giving the public an intelligent idea of the event taking place, thus avoiding embarrassing misstatements.

One of our contemporaries, in speaking of the anniversary parade, stated that many members of the veteran corps had participated in every battle with the army of the Potomac and were marching in the ranks to-day with a wooden leg or minus an arm.

This is ridiculous in the extreme, as veterans thus maimed would scarcely parade with an organization marching at the rate of 120 steps to the minute.

With few exceptions, the members of the First Regiment Veteran Corps come from the original ten companies of the National Guard command and their object is to perpetuate the comradeship instilled during their active service and to make it an incentive to the enlisted men of the First Regiment to serve out their full term, thus entitling them to membership in the non-active command.

The value of this organization was fully demonstrated during the Spanish-American War when they furnished the First Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry with several hundred desirable recruits, and in many other ways assisted the boys in the field.

The leading veteran organizations of the National Guard in the State to-day are the Duquesne Greys of the Eighteenth Infantry of Pittsburgh; the Old Guard of the Second Regiment, Philadelphia; the Veteran Corps of the Scranton City Guard, (Thirteenth Infantry); the Tigers, or Old Guard of the Battalion State Fencibles, and the crack First Regiment Veteran Organization, which Colonel Theodore E. Weidersheim commands, and Colonel Price, of the Third Regiment, contemplates organizing one in the near future.

The Sheridan Troop of Tyrone also have a veteran association which principally comprises Spanish-American War veterans.

Personal Mention

Colonel John P. Penney, Division Inspector, was a guest of Major Benjamin C. Tilghman on the evening of April 23d.

Company "B" of the Thirteenth Infantry has the Senior Captain, Senior First Lieutenant, Senior First Sergeant and Corporal of the Regiment.

Lieutenant Robert A. Zentmyer, of the Sheridan Troop, has located in Tyrone, where his services will be of great assistance to the first platoon.

Furloughs have been granted to Privates G. L. and J. E. Farnum, First Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, with permission to go beyond the seas. The troopers will be accompanied by their families.

Mr. Hugh Crilley, of Allentown, formerly a member of the Fourth Infantry, is at the head of a movement to organize a new Company in Lehigh County. It is expected that this Company, when fully organized, will seek admission to the State Guard.

A small coterie of officers of the Third Foot were quietly enjoying a Bohemian lunch on April 24th at a favorite resort when the tallest Captain of the party suddenly looked up and said, Gentlemen! and the next day "Price reigned," and it is needless to say what a cloudy day it was.

Companies "A" and "I" of the Fourth Regiment pay an annual Armory rental of $700, $300 more than the State provides. They are obliged to surrender their drill nights for all social occasions that may come up in the use of the Hall. During the last drill season they have had but ten nights' use of the drill floor.

The Fourth and Twelfth Regiments would each have had 100 per cent. present at the spring inspection but for the absence without leave of a Lieutenant of Company H, Twelfth Regiment, and a Lieutenant of Company A, Fourth Regiment.

Captain Fremont Stokes, who recently resigned the captaincy of Company F, Thirteenth Regiment, will probably be the next Captain of Company M, Ninth Regiment, located at Pittston, where Captain Stokes now resides. It is reported that Captain Casper, now commanding that Company, contemplates resigning.

Several Captains of the Thirteenth Infantry are in a quandary as to whether the expense of employing a Company cook for the coming encampment would be a proper expenditure to charge against the annual allowance. We should say it would be provided the man was enlisted.

Captain Charles D. Rhoades, Company "B," Fourth Regiment, through the courtesy of Colonel William G. Price, Jr., was given the use of the Third Regiment Armory on the afternoon of April 23d for the purpose of drilling his commandery, connected with the Patriotic Order Sons of America. This commandery, which is located at Allentown, has been a prize winner for a number of years.

INSPECTION OF THE EIGHTH

Major William P. Clarke, Inspecting Officer of the Third Brigade, has been busy inspecting the Eighth Regiment, beginning with Company "E" on April 16th, at Mahonoy City; on the 17th, Company "B" of Tamaqua was inspected and on April 19th, Captain Owen's Company "H" at Pottsville went through the ordeal; Company "K" of St. Clair on April 20th, Company "G" at Carlisle on the 23d, Company "C" at Chambersburg on the 24th, Companies "D" and "I" at Harrisburg on the 25th and 26th, and Company "A" of York on the 27th.

It is stated that these Companies all put up fine inspections, showing marked improvement, especially in Wagner's security and guard duty.

Company "F" of Girardville, owing to its inability to keep up the minimum standard, has been recommended for disbandment by Colonel Hoffman. Most of the men of this Company, being unable to secure employment in Girardville, have taken up their residence in Philadelphia.

NINTH REGIMENT NOTES.

Company "C" of the Ninth, commanded by Captain Colony, put up a very snappy inspection on Monday evening, April 15th, Major Millar being the inspecting officer. After the official program had been gone through with, Colonel Dougherty presented to Private Thomas Nicholson a very handsome reclining chair on behalf of the members of Company "C."

Private Nicholson is the "papa" of the Company, having had fifteen years continuous service in the ranks.

Lieutenant and Battalion Adjutant George F. Buss, Ninth Infantry, entertained quite a number of officers and civilian officials after the inspection of Company "C" at the Elks Headquarters. Lieut. Buss has been in the service of the Ninth Regiment for the last fifteen years, having gone through the Spanish-American War in his present rank and he is one of Colonel Dougherty's indefatigable workers. He represents the ideal class of the National Guardsmen.

These examinations, therefore, will be thorough. It will require very careful study and preparation on the part of the examiners.

Examinations must be fair. Catch questions will not be used. Mere scholastic attainments will be lightly considered. Wealth or social position merely will cut no figure.

Intelligence and the military spirit are the great considerations. With these should go a fair knowledge of the English branches, ability to exemplify "The School of the Soldier" and instruct others, and a soldierly carriage and bearing that shall be a model for the company to copy. Military spirit, application, discipline are the qualities sought for, but good habits are an absolute essential.

The chevrons must be made to command the respect due to superior intelligence, manliness and soldierliness.

V. Lieutenant Chess Lamberton will at the time of inspection of Company F, parade the band and display State property in the manner prescribed for a company, seeing that each Captain gets credit from the Inspecting Officer for the property in his care. He will ascertain from the respective Captains the names of men carried on their rolls as members of the band, and require the attendance of such men at Inspection, presenting the Inspecting Officer with a roster of them.

VI. The following suggestion for the display of State property is offered, and except where Captains have devised a thoroughly superior form, it will, for the sake of uniformity, be observed throughout the regiment:

Four tables (12-foot boards placed on trestles will answer) should be conveniently placed. There should be shown:

On First Table—

Knives, forks, spoons, each neatly tied up in bundles of five.
Meat ration cans in piles of five.
Tin cups, in bundles of five.

On Second Table—

Knapsacks, in piles of five, numbers in order.
Haversacks, in piles of five, numbers in order.
Leggins, in piles of five, number in order.
Waistbelts, in bundles of five.

On Third Table—

Hats and caps, insignia exposed.
Blouses, neatly folded in one or more piles.
Trousers, neatly folded, in one or more piles.
Shirts, neatly folded, in one or more piles.

On Fourth Table—

Wool blankets, folded once, in one or more piles, numbers overlying in order.
Overcoats, neatly folded lengthwise, in one or more piles, numbers in order.

VII. Captains and Lieutenants, do you realize that the habits of your men are in the formative state, and that they look to you for more than mere military instruction? The influence of officers, and especially of Captains, who are always prompt, scrupulously neat in attire, courteous in manner and soldierly in carriage and bearing is almost inestimable not only upon the military rank of their companies, but upon the characters and future lives of the young men committed to their charge. Now, amongst us all there are some grave faults. There is a lack of promptness. Quarterly Returns are not made promptly. Captains fail even to publish, or, perhaps, even to read the orders sent them. Officers naturally well formed are slovenly in carriage. Some pay insufficient attention to dress and equipments. Some are not attentive to military courtesies. Some have never learned to salute a Reviewing Officer properly, nor how to dress a company, nor the customary forms of military correspondence.

Now, let us pull ourselves together. Let us begin again with the Drill Regulations and Guard Manual and make them our own. Let us be more careful in dress, carriage, deportment, attention to military courtesies; more studious, more capable and better soldiers, all.

By Colonel Willis J Hulings.

STATE MILITIA.

The local naval militiamen were very much exercised lately over a bill that was introduced in the Legislature on April 2d, and of which the officers of the Battalion first heard after it had already been introduced in the House and sent to the Committee on Military Affairs. Not having been consulted at all in the preparation of the bill, and being ignorant of its contents except as might be learned from a newspaper report that had appeared, the Battalion officers immediately sent two of their number to Harrisburg to obtain a copy of the bill and claim a hearing later before the Committee.

The proposed Act proved to have two salient features, one of these was the creation of a "Naval Militia Department," to be commanded by the Naval Aide on the Governor's staff. This unique departure from National Guard law and tradition in putting an appointive staff officer in charge of a "Department" and thereby in virtual command of a portion of the "Guard" was stoutly opposed by the officers of the Battalion, as was also the second important feature of the bill, which would have resulted in legislating out of the State service Commander Ruschenberger and several other officers, and proposed to substitute for the present organization, which, as in all other States, is that of a Battalion organized as a ship's company, a couple of smaller ship's companies organized upon a basis which all the officers of the Battalion and ex-officers were satisfied were impracticable and contrary to both Navy and National Guard usage.

These considerations and a number of others were presented to the Military Affairs Committee, at a meeting held in Harrisburg on April 9th, and after arguments in favor of the bill the Committee decided on a negative recommendation by a vote of what is believed on good authority to have been 16 to 2; and so ended a matter which, while it lasted, was a great annoyance to the officers of the Naval force and was a cause of uneasiness among the men.

The infantry and artillery inspections by Col. Sweeney were held April 22d and 23d, and showed a decided improvement over last year.

Now that these inspections are over the Battalion is getting things in shape for the regular summer work. The men are using their Saturday afternoons and spare time in scraping and painting the pulling boats, overhauling boat gear, overhauling the deck equipment of the "Shearwater," and making general preparations for getting out again on the Delaware.

TWELFTH REGIMENT NOTES.

Company G, has elected First Lieutenant D. Hammond Foreman Captain, vice Snyder, promoted to A. D. C., Third Brigade staff, and promoted Second Lieutenant George P. Foresman to First Lieutenant. After two unsuccessful attempts at electing a Second Lieutenant with Sergeants Updegraff and Koser as the leading candidates the election was adjourned without day and the company will be allowed to go with but two officers until the spirit which was rapidly cropping out as a result of the contest shall cool down.

Company H, now has but one officer. Second Lieutenant Carpenter G. Winslow moved his residence into the territory of the Second Brigade and his resignation has been accepted. First Lieutenant James I. Paul has just tendered his resignation. Battalion Sergeant Major Roy Schuyler will probably succeed to the vacant Second Lieutenancy and later to the First Lieutenancy.

The officers of the Second Battalion have resumed their monthly officers schools under the direction of Major B. H. Updegraff.

Companies D, G and I, are refitting and refurnishing their Company quarters.

The marksman's decorations for 1900 have been distributed in all of the Companies, and the opening of the season of 1901 is eagerly awaited.

A meeting of the Company commanders was held at Regimental headquarters, Sunbury, on April 15th, to take into consideration matters of interest to the Regiment and transact such business as was brought before it.

Lieutenant Colonel William F. Barber sat as a summary court at the Armory of Company B, on April 8th, and at the Armory of Company E on April 16th, to hear the cases of the members who were absent from inspection without leave.

Company A—Sergeants Hedley, S. Best and George A. Royer. Corporals John C. Groff, Herbert G. Mabus and Jesse M. Snyder.

NOTES.

Colonel C. B. Dougherty, Ninth Regiment Infantry, N. G. P., gave a dinner in honor of Major W. S. Millar, A. A. G., Third Brigade, and Mrs. Millar, at his residence on Bowman's Hill, Wilkes-Barre, on April 3d. The Field and Staff of the Ninth Regiment were present and were inspected by Major Millar at the Armory the same evening, together with the Regimental band and Companies F and K. A large number of spectators were present.

The Field and Staff, Band and Companies A, B, D, F and K of the Ninth Regiment, located at Wilkes-Barre, will hold a smoker at the Armory on Monday evening, April 29th. The affair will be exclusively for the members of the Regiment located in Wilkes-Barre. A fine program has been arranged, lunch will be served and an enjoyable time is promised.

An election was held in Company E, Ninth Regiment Infantry, stationed at Parsons, Pa., on April 6th, by Captain Harold G. Frantz, Adjutant Ninth Regiment Infantry, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of First Lieutenant Eben Williams. Second Lieutenant Robert J. Horn was advanced to First Lieutenant without opposition, and for Second Lieutenant Regimental Commissary Sergeant Walter L. Quick was elected after a spirited contest. Lieut. Quick is an old member of Company E, having served as a Corporal in that Company before his appointment on the non-commissioned staff. He has been a member of the Guard since 1893.

On the evening of April 11th, Company "I," Ninth Infantry, Captain Pierce, located at Plymouth, Pa., reported for inspection and put up a very good drill. This Company has about 80 per cent. service men in its ranks who are mostly miners and all members of the union. They deserve great credit for their continuance in the State service, as much pressure has been brought in this section of the State to prevent members of the union continuing in the National Guard.

Major F. L. McKee, Ninth Regiment, in all probability will become Sheriff of Luzerne County in the near future.

Several Captains in the Third Brigade, under instruction of their commanding officer, have placed telephones in their residences, which expense is deducted from the annual allowance.

It has been the custom in most Companies for many years to appoint a camp mess committee, with the Captain usually as ex-officio Chairman, the object being to take some extra provisions in addition to what the State furnishes. These are paid for by the men who voluntarily agree to give $1.00 out of their camp pay. Thus they secure a mess which not only provides them the substantials but little luxuries which makes the soldier feel good during his tour of duty. The committee's work can be considerably lessened this year by placing their orders with E. A. Bowker & Co., 13th and Market streets, Philadelphia. This firm will take special pains in filling orders for the encampment. Their resources are so large that they are enabled to have a variety that pleases the boys. The several Captains who purchased from this firm last year speak in the highest terms of the treatment they received, not only the excellent qualities furnished, but the reasonable prices charged.

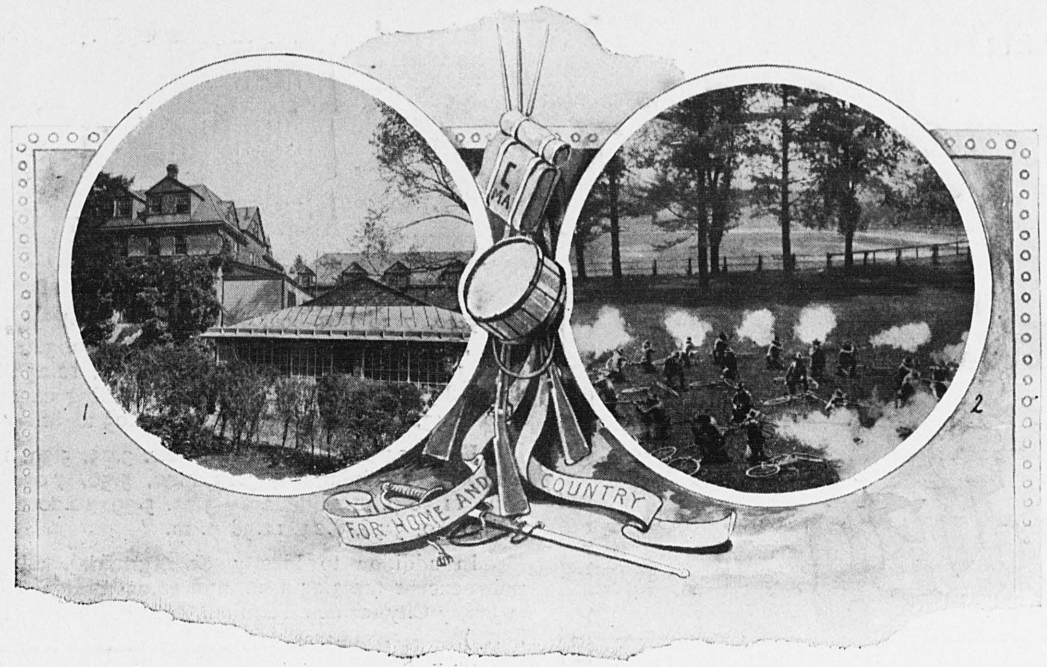
(NEAR PHILADELPHIA)

"AN IDEAL SCHOOL IN AN IDEAL LOCATION"



CHELTENHAM MILITARY ACADEMY, on the summit of the Chelten Hills, near Philadelphia, has a location and environment rarely equaled for beauty and healthfulness. The School was founded twenty-eight years ago by the late Rev. Samuel Clements, D. D., and from its opening has had the best class of patronage and has met with unusual success in the training and education of young men and boys. A majority of its graduates enter leading colleges or scientific schools, and for the past six years its annual representation in such institutions has been equal to one-half the attendance of the school.

Among the features that have contributed to the success and popularity of the Academy, the following will at once commend themselves to judicious parents: 1. The attendance is limited to seventy boarding pupils, in order that the classes may not be so large as to render attention to the individual pupil inconvenient or impossible. 2. Ten resident instructors (an average of one for every seven cadets), selected for their ability and experience and for their willingness to take an interest in the welfare and happiness of the pupils. 3. An honest endeavor to train and educate the whole boy rather than to merely prepare him to pass college entrance examinations. 4. The moral tone and influence of the institution.

Parents seeking the right school for a boy are cordially invited to visit the Academy, or to communicate with the Principal. Rooms are a signed in order of application.
